

COVID-19 Risk Assessments

As businesses look to re-open or return to their work premises, whether fully or partially, the next key step is to complete a robust Risk Assessment process to ensure the continued safety of employees and members of the public.

The Government has published Guidance for businesses across a range of sectors on how to work safely during the pandemic and the specific things to consider as they move out of lockdown.

Information can be obtained here: <https://www.gov.uk/guidance/working-safely-during-coronavirus-covid-19>

In addition, on the HSE website there is detailed information on Managing Risk more broadly. Information can be located at <https://www.hse.gov.uk/risk/>

Whilst both of these resources are helpful, they cannot cover every specific set of circumstances and many businesses find the amount of information overwhelming. As such they are looking for practical advice and support with the completion of Risk Assessments to check they have identified all relevant risks, put suitable measures in place to mitigate the risk and protect the safety of their employees. Knowing they have a 2nd opinion on the steps they are taking provides piece of mind to both employers and their employees.

Risk Assessment Reviews

Sureteam are currently working with a wide range of businesses helping them to review and complete Risk Assessments for the return to the workplace or re-opening of premises. Reviews can be completed via email and video call and we provide a fixed fee per Risk Assessment.
